

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

THIS Poem was written last summer, immediately after the publication of Sir William Chambers's Dissertation; but the bookseller, to whom it was offered, declined publishing it, till the town was full. His reason for this is obvious; yet it would hardly have weigh'd with the author, had he not thought, that his hero's fame would increase in proportion to his publisher's profit. However he foresaw, that, by this delay, one inconvenience might arise, which this preface is written to remove. Readers of the present generation are so very inattentive to what they read, that it is probable, one half of Sir William's may have forgotten the principles which his book inculcates. Let these, then, be reminded, that it is the author's profest aim in extolling the taste of the Chinese, to condemn that mean and paltry manner which Kent introduced, which Southcote, Hamilton, and Brown followed, and which, to our national disgrace, is called the English style of gardening. He shews the poverty of this taste, by aptly comparing it to a dinner, which consisted of three gross pieces, three times repeated; and proves to a demonstration, that Nature herself is incapable of pleasing, without the assistance of Art, and that too of the most luxuriant kind. In short, such art as is displayed in the Emperor's garden of Yven-Ming-

Ming-Yven, near Pekin; where fine lizards, and fine women, human giants, and giant-baboons, make but a small part of the superb scenery. He teaches us, that a perfect garden must contain within itself all the amusements of a great city; that Urbs in gure, not Rus in urbe, is the thing, which an improver of true taste ought to aim at. He says ---but it is impossible to abridge all that he says;---Let this therefore suffice, to tempt the reader again to peruse his invaluable Dissertation, since without it, he will never relish half the beauties of the following epistle; for (if her Majesty's Zebra, and the powder-mills at Hounslow be excepted) there is scarce a single image in it, which is not taken from that work.

But though the images be borrowed, the author claims some small merit from his application of them. Sir William says too modestly, "that European artists must not hope to rival Oriental splendor." The poet shews, that European artists may easily rival it; and, that Richmond gardens, with only the addition of a new bridge to join them to Brentford, may be new modelled, perfectly à la Chinois. He exhorts his Knight to undertake the glorious task, and leaves no cause to doubt, but that, under the auspicious patronage he now so justly enjoys, added to the ready vote of those, who furnish ways and means, the royal work will speedily be completed.

Whose orb collects, in one refulgent view,

The scatter'd glories of Chinese Virtù;

Verse 2. [Cynosure of British taste.] Cynosure, an affected phrase. Cynosura is the constellation of Ursa Minor, or the Lesser Bear, the next star to the Pole. Dr. Newton, on the word in Milton.

And spread their lustre in so broad a blaze, 5
 That Kings themselves are dazzled while they gaze.
 O let the Muse attend thy march sublime,
 And, with thy prose, caparison her rhyme ;
 Teach her, like thee, to gild her splendid song,
 With scenes of Yven-Ming, and sayings of Li-Tsong ; 10
 Like thee to scorn Dame Nature's simple fence ;
 Leap each Ha Ha of truth and common sense ;
 And proudly rising in her bold career,
 Demand attention from the gracious ear
 Of Him, whom we and all the world admit, 15
 Patron supreme of science, taste, and wit.

Verse 10. [With scenes of Yven-Ming.] One of the Imperial gardens at Pekin. [Sayings of Li-Tsong.] "Many trees, shrubs, and flowers," sayeth Li-Tsong, a Chinese author of great antiquity, "thrive best in low, moist situations; many on hills and mountains; some require a rich soil; but others will grow on clay, in sand, or even upon rocks, and in the water: to some a sunny exposition is necessary; but for others the shade is preferable. There are plants which thrive best in exposed situations, but in general, shelter is requisite. The skilful gardener, to whom study and experience have taught these qualities, carefully attends to them in his operations; knowing that thereon depend the health and growth of his plants; and consequently the beauty of his plantations." Vide Diff. p. 77. The reader, I presume, will readily allow, that he never met with so much recondite truth, as this ancient Chinese here exhibits.

Does Envy doubt ? Witnefs ye chosen train !
 Who breathe the sweets of his Saturnian reign ;
 Witnefs ye H*lls, ye J*ns*ns, Sc*ts, S*bb*s,
 Hark to my call, for some of you have ears.

Let Dd H*e, from the remotest North,
 In fee-faw sceptic scruples hint his worth ;
 Dd, who there supinely deigns to lye
 The fattest Hog of Epicurus' sty ;
 Tho' drunk with Gallic wine, and Gallic praise,
 Dd shall bless Old England's halcyon days ;
 The mighty Home bemir'd in prose so long,
 Again shall stalk upon the stilts of song ;
 While bold Mac-Offian, wont in ghosts to deal,
 Bids candid Smollet from his coffin steal ;
 Bids Mallock quit his sweet Elyfian rest,
 Sunk in his St. John's philosophic breast,
 And, like old Orpheus, make some strong effort
 To come from Hell, and warble truth at Court.

Verse 34. [Truth at Court.] Vide (if it be extant) a poem under this title, for which (or for the publication of Lord Bolingbroke's philosophical writings) the person here mentioned, received a considerable pension in the time of Lord B—te's administration.

There was a time, " in Efther's peaceful grove, 35
 " When Kent and Nature vy'd for Pelham's love,"
 That Pope beheld them with auspicious smile,
 And own'd that Beauty blest their mutual toil.
 Mistaken Bard ! could such a pair design
 Scenes fit to live in thy immortal line ? 40
 Hadst though been born in this enlighten'd day,
 Felt, as we feel, Taste's oriental ray,
 Thy satire sure had given them both a stab,
 Called Kent a Driveller, and the Nymph a Drab.
 For what is Nature ? Ring her changes round, 45
 Her three flat notes are water, plants, and ground ;

Prolong

N O T E.

Verse 45. [For what is Nature?] This is the great and fundamental axiom, on which oriental taste is founded. It is therefore expressed here with the greatest precision, and in the identical phrase of the great original. The figurative terms, and even the explanatory simile, are entirely borrowed from Sir William's Dissertation. "Nature (says the Chinese, or Sir William for them) affords us but few materials to work with. Plants, ground, and water, are her only productions ; and, though both the forms and arrangements of these may be varied to an incredible degree, yet have they but few striking varieties, the rest being of the nature of changes rung upon bells, which, though in reality different, still produce the same uniform kind of gingling ; the variation being too minute to be easily perceived." "Art must therefore supply the scantiness of Nature," &c. &c. page 14.
And

Prolong the peal, yet spite of all your clatter,
 The tedious chime is still ground, plants, and water.
 So, when some John his dull invention racks,
 To rival Boodle's dinners, or Almack's,
 Three uncouth legs of mutton shock our eyes,
 Three roasted geese, three butter'd apple-pies.

50

Come then, prolific Art, and with thee bring
 The charms that rise from thy exhaustless spring;
 To Richmond come, for see, untutor'd Brown
 Destroys those wonders which were once thy own.
 Lo, from his melon-ground the peasant slave
 Has rudely rush'd, and levell'd Merlin's Cave;
 Knock'd down the waxen Wizzard, seiz'd his wand,
 Transform'd to lawn what late was Fairy land;
 And marr'd, with impious hand, each sweet design
 Of Stephen Duck, and good Queen Caroline.

And again, "Our larger works are only a repetition of the small ones, like the honest Bachelor's feast, which consisted in nothing but a multiplication of his own dinner; three legs of mutton and turneps, three roasted geese, and three buttered apple-pies." Preface, page 7.

Haste, bid yon living Terras recede,
 Replace each vista, straighten every bend;
 Shut out the Thames; shall that ignoble thing 65
 Approach the presence of great Ocean's King?
 No! let Barbaric glories feast his eyes,
 August Pagodas round his palace rise,
 And finish'd Richmond open to his view,

Verse 72. [Monkeys shall climb our trees.] " In their lofty woods serpents and lizards of many beautiful sorts crawl upon the ground: Innumerable monkeys, tats, and parrots clamber upon the trees." Page 40. " In their lakes are many islands, some small, some large, amongst which are often seen elephants, the rhinoceros, the dromedary, ostrich, and the giant baboon." Page 66. " They keep in their enchanted scenes, a surprising variety of monstrous birds, reptiles, and animals, which are tamed by art, and guarded by enormous dogs of Tibet and African giants, in the habits of magicians." Page 42. " Sometimes in this romantic excursion, the passenger finds himself on extensive recesses, surrounded with arbours of jessamine, vine, and roses; where beautiful Tartarean damsels, in loose transparent robes that flutter in the air, present him with rich

Where hiss our snakes, where sport our Tartar maids;

Or, wanting these, from Charlotte Hayes we bring,

Damsels alike adroit to sport and sing.

Now to our lawns of dalliance and delight,

Join we the groves of horror and affright;

This to atchieve no foreign aids we try,

rich wines, &c. and invite him to taste the sweets of retirement, on Persian carpets, and beds of Camusathkin down." Page 40.

Verse 84. [Thy gibbets, Bagshot!] " Their scenes of terror are composed of gloomy woods, &c. gibbets, gosses, wheels, and the whole apparatus of torture are seen from the roads. Here too they conceal in cavities, on the summits of the highest mountains, founderies, lime-kilns, and glass works, which send forth large volumes of flame, and continued columns of thick smoke, that give to these mountains the appearance of Volcanos."

Here too, O King of Vengeance, in thy fane,
 Tremendous Wilkes shall rattle his gold chain;
 And round that fane on many a Tyburn tree,
 Hang fragments dire of Newgate-history; 90
 On this shall H*ll*d's dying speech be read,
 Here B—te's confession, and his wooden head;
 While all the minor plunderers of the age

Volcanos." Page 37. "Here the passenger, from time to time, is surprized with repeated shocks of electrical impulse; the earth trembles under him by the power of confined air," &c. Page 39. Now to produce both these effects, viz. the appearance of volcanos and earthquakes, we have here substituted the occasional explosion of a powder-mill, which (if there be not too much simplicity in the contrivance) it is apprehended will at once answer all the purposes of lime-kilns, and electrical machines, and imitate thunder, and the explosion of cannon into the bargain. Vide page 40.

Verse 87. [Here too, O King of Vengeance, &c.] "In the most dismal recesses of the woods, are temples dedicated to the King of Vengeance, near which are placed pillars of stone, with pathetic descriptions of tragical events; and many acts of cruelty perpetrated there by outlaws and robbers." Page 37.

Verse 88. [Tremendous Wilkes.] This was written while Mr. Wilkes was Sheriff of London, and when it was to be feared he would rattle his chain a year longer as Lord Mayor.

But say, ye powers, who come when Fancy calls,
 Where shall our mimic London rear her walls?
 That Eastern feature, Art must next produce,
 Tho' not for present, yet for future use;
 Our sons some slave of greatness may behold,
 Cast in the genuine Asiatic mould;
 Who of three realms shall condescend to know
 No more than he can spy from Windsor's brow;
 For Him that blessing of a better time,
 The Muse shall deal awhile in brick and lime;
 Surpass the bold ADELPHI in design,
 And o'er the Thames fling one stupendous line

Yven-Ming-Yven, near Pekin, a fortified town, with its port, streets, public squares, temples, markets, shops, and tribunals of justice; in short, with every thing that is at Pekin, only on a smaller scale."

"In this town the Emperors of China, who are too much the slaves of their greatness to appear in public, and their women, who are excluded from it by custom, are frequently diverted with the hurry and bustle of the capital, which is there represented, several times in the year, by the eunuchs of the palace."
